

“Metu and Lee Told Me” Written by Jack Kapanka

In April 2006, through the coordination of Trans Continental, Dr. Shenin Sachedina sat down with Jack Kapanka to write a song which would accompany her new children’s book Metu and Lee Learn About Breast Cancer. Within hours the two had created an amazing piece of work! The result is a spectacular new song, which along with the book helps children understand the changes going on within their family as a parent undergoes treatment for breast cancer.

About Jack: Jack Christian Kapanka was born on the outskirts of Bethlehem, PA, raised in Nazareth, PA and is the youngest of twenty brothers and sisters. He was born blind in both eyes. At the age of two, he gained sight in his right eye and by age three, he was singing with his family in various churches and half-way houses across the country.

As Jack's music career began to take hold, he performed his music for a growing group of fans. Jack landed a 20-minute audition with two music industry powerhouses: Robert Fischetti, executive Vice-President of Trans Continental Records, who helped groom bands such as the BackStreet, *NSYNC, LFO, and O-Town, and Johnny Wright of *NSYNC and Britney Spears fame. "I started off sitting back in my chair with my arms crossed and ended up at the edge of my seat," said Fischetti, "I knew I had something very special before me; I knew Jack was the real thing. "

More than anything, Jack wants his music to touch the hearts of those around him. He states: "I want to impact the world in a positive way. Music is something that everyone connects with. It captures our innermost feelings when words escape us. It heals our deepest wounds in our darkest times of despair. It inspires us to accomplish our dreams."

Jack has been involved with other charity organizations. “A Champion” was written for the athletes of the Special Olympics to inspire greatness in all of us. Jack performed it in the opening ceremonies of the 2001 Special Olympics World Winter Games. He also wrote the theme song for Freedom Ride.
