

Metu and Lee's release is planned for May to coincide with Mother's Day, and several events are planned to help make the launch a success. Bebe's on Park Avenue in Winter Park will be hosting a book signing with "Dr. S" and Michael Winslow, the talented actor from the Police Academy movies whose vocal talents bring characters to life in the audio version of the book. With the generous support of Louis Pearlman and Trans Continental Records, Dr. Shenin is also planning a gala at Church Street Station in October, 100 percent of the proceeds going to children's oncology services. A circus carnival theme complete with antique carousel horses is sure to make for a fun event and help everyone remember what it feels like to be a child.

What started out as a simple attempt by one doctor to help her own patients has grown into a project that has the potential to help breast cancer victims and their families worldwide, but Dr. Shenin can not do it on her own. To help make the gala a success, she is in need of sponsors, auction items, entertainment, audiovisual technical support and volunteers. She also needs people to help her spread the word about this book and get it into the hands of those who need it most. She would like to see copies available in both schools and public libraries, so every child haunted by breast cancer has access to the comfort and encouragement found in its pages.

Want to help? Then visit the Metu and Lee website at metuandlee.com. You can find out more about the book, the events, the amazing woman behind the project and how you can help make a difference in the lives of many, many people. Even if breast cancer has not touched your life personally, chances are it will, either directly or by affecting someone you love.
